

THE RALEIGH NEWS.

VOL. LV.-68.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 21, 1879.

$5.00 PER ANNUM.

NO NATIONAL ELECTION.

SENATOR WHYTE GIVES HIS VIEWS ON THE SUBJECT.

The Bill in Relation to the Transfer of Cases from State to Federal Courts has an Airing.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—SENATE.— Senator McDonald asked leave to introduce a bill authorizing the President to employ the militia and the naval forces of the United States to enforce the laws whenever their election is obstructed by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the judicial authorities, etc., preventing the military from being used as a posse comitatus except in cases authorized by the Constitution and the laws. Senator Edmunds objected on the ground that previous notice had not been given.

Senator McDonald then withdrew the bill, and gave notice that he should ask leave to introduce to-morrow. The Senate then resumed consideration of the legislative, judicial, and executive appropriation bill.

Senator Saunders read a short speech in opposition to the bill; that the use of the militia is necessary to secure fair elections in the South. Senator Wade said the political clauses of the bill were not extensive enough to meet his views, which were opposed to all Federal interference, civil or military, in State affairs. In his judgment there is no sufficient cause for a national election; elections are either State or national; Senators and Representatives are agents of and responsible to States. There has been no prototype for our form of Government. Senator Whyte made a brilliant historical argument.

Senor or Jones, of Louisiana, followed in a speech warmly defending the people of Louisiana from the charges made against them of violence and disloyalty, and insisting that they respected the law of the States authority, and were united in the effort to secure good government.

At four o'clock the vote was taken, Senator Edmunds' motion to strike out the clauses repealing the statutes relating to the trial of cases was yeas 27, nays 3. Senator Ellsworth moved to strike out the clause establishing mode of drawing United States jurors. Lost; yeas 27, nays 35. He then moved to strike out the clauses repealing the statutes relating to United States deputy marshals and supervisors of elections. Lost; yeas 27, nays 35. He then moved to strike out the clause repealing section 552 of the revised statutes, which punishes interference with or obstruction of deputy marshals and supervisors of elections in the performance of their duty. Lost; yeas 27, nays 37. The bill was then read a third time and passed; yeas 37, nays 27. The Senate then proceeded to consider the contagious disease bill. Without action the Senate adjourned until Thursday.

House.—The bill was introduced as business in the morning hour, and the bill to amend the laws relating to the transfer of cases from State to Federal Courts, and Mr. Urner concluded his argument against it. He asked whether an officer in execution of the fugitive slave law had committed homicide, that it would be held responsible, what would be under this bill to the tender mercies of a Massachusetts jury. He asserted that the protection of the Federal officers, those who had the power to search, seize, and confine, and suppose in this broad land, and that was the power of the Government of the United States.

Mr. Frye moved to lay the bill on the table.

The House Judiciary Committee were to meet to-day, and it was anticipated by the Democrats that the report being prepared by Chairman Knott on the Presidential veto would be submitted. A communication was received from that gentleman, however, to the effect that he was otherwise engaged this evening, and would be unable to attend, and desired a postponement until to-morrow, when, it is said by a prominent Democratic member of the committee, the report will likely be presented. It remained, however, to decide that the parchment had been changed, and that an address on the subject will be issued to the people through the Democratic campaign committee.

The Ways and Means Committee have indefinitely postponed consideration of the subject of adjournment, recently referred to that committee.

War News not Reliable.

London, May 20.—The Times' financial article says that Peruvian advances, official and other, contradict the Valparaiso telegrams about the progress of the war, and call attention to the fact that Chile is in control of all communications. The news, therefore, is necessarily one-sided.

$500 on Forged Checks.

BALTIMORE, May 20.—Channing P. Redford, a young man eighteen or twenty years of age, recently clerk in the banking and commission house of Thomas B. Smith, was arrested this morning charged with obtaining about $500 from the Merchant's National Bank, of Richmond, on forged checks of his employers' firm on Friday last. Redford is held awaiting the arrival of officers from Richmond. He confesses having drawn the money.

Failures in Great Britain.

London, May 20.—R. G. Thielbald, cotton manufacturer of Preston, has failed; liabilities, £36,000.

C. M. E. Smutz, ironmonger, of Midlothian, has failed; liabilities, £900.

It is thought that the recent heavy failures in the iron trade may compel one or two private banks to transfer their business to larger institutions.

Loly, Sells & Co., merchants in the Spanish trade, No. 10 East Cheap, E. C., have failed.

W. Pold & Co., and Symons & Co., both of Rotterdam, have failed in consequence of the failure of the Africanische Handelsvereniging; the liabilities of the latter will fall heavily on the Memphian Farmstadt bank, and Bank of Rotterdam.

One of the directors of the Africanische Handelsvereniging tried to commit suicide at Antwerp, but was unsuccessful. He is now under surveillance in the hospital, as it is expected his health will never be restored.

Another director of the same company has fled to Spain with his family. The latter, whose name is Panoff, was a man of great commercial and financial influence. He was a member of the first chamber and one of the leaders of the liberal party.

Indiana's Way of "Giving in Marriage."

Special Dispatch to the St. Louis Globe.

BOONESVILLE, Ind., May 14.—Luther McCoy, a young law student of this place, went to Rockport last Friday to attend court, and while returning home, about 10 o'clock in the evening, was stopped by Jacob brother and Levi Lansburg, who demanded that

THE EXTRA SESSION.

A FREE AND UNTRAMMELLED BALLOT INSISTED ON.

Congressman Blackburn introduced—Praise of Senator Cohen—Senator Vance's Birthday.

Correspondence of the News.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The past week's work in Congress may be canceled as worthless for the good of the country. The statesmen have been toiling to see how many presidential speeches could be worked in. In the House the material for windy speechmaking is immense; the new members are exceedingly fond of taking the floor whenever an opportunity is offered. As to the length of the session, it is still a mystery. We met Congressman Joe Blackburn yesterday as he passed out of the hall of bad air to relax his form in the open atmosphere. We put the following interrogation: "Give me a statesmanlike answer," said the News, "to a question?" "Well, what is it?" said the eloquent patriot, from the blue grass country, "How long will the present session last?"

"UNTIL THE FIRST OF JULY."

was the quick reply. "Is that your opinion?" "Yes." "Is there nothing to indicate that the session will be adjourned to never meet until we have succeeded in getting a free and untrammeled ballot, free and un molested liberty, and at the polls that freedom which every citizen of the American continent has by the rights of the constitution?" "Yes." "Will you guarantee to our forefathers and adjourn, for us, to be born on his legs for 43 hours out of 40, and needed rest." Brother Carey Styles said he wanted to urge the convention to move to visit the city of Cambridge, and then to speak on the subject, saying that the federal relations between this country and China were not altogether pacific; whereupon Brother Styles wanted to know what in the devil that he had to do with it. Brother Webster informed Styles that he had been on his legs for 43 hours out of 40, and needed rest. Brother Carey Styles rose to the point of adjournment, and the Executive was about the Long Parliament and Charles I. He, too, trifled with the veto and with parliament, and you remember that Charles, too, lost his head. The first time I read in the Constitution that the colonies had thrown off their allegiance to the king, I was greatly annoyed. The first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the mother country, and which were so masterly summed up in his effects, related to the cancellation of charters, what George III. refused his assent to laws most necessary to the welfare of the people." And you will probably remember that George III., too, lost his head, though only mentally. The last time I heard much about King George was when a Republican Congress impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and came within one vote of removing him and adjourned. Estill Sypher, of Georgia, said that the first of the charges against George III., upon which the colonies based their separation from the

DAILY NEWS

WEDNESDAY, - - - MAY 21, 1879.

HUSSEY & JORDAN, PROPRIETORS

JOHN R. HUSSEY, - - - Editor.

THE POLITICAL PROSPECTS FOR 1880.

Michigan	11
Minnesota	5
Nebraska	3
New Hampshire	5
Nevada	4
Rhode Island	29
Pennsylvania	5
Vermont	125
Total	125
Alabama	10
Arkansas	6
Delaware	3
Florida	4
Georgia	11
Kentucky	12
Louisiana	8
Maryland	8
Mississippi	15
Missouri	10
North Carolina	7
Tennessee	12
Texas	8
Virginia	11
West Virginia	5
Total	138

electoral votes, and that the following States will vote for the Democratic candidate, viz:

Alabama 10

Arkansas 6

Delaware 3

Florida 4

Georgia 11

Kentucky 12

Louisiana 8

Maryland 8

Mississippi 15

Missouri 10

North Carolina 7

Tennessee 12

Texas 8

Virginia 11

West Virginia 5

Total 138

electoral votes.

These States we assume positively will vote in the contest in 1880 Democratic, and of the number given to the Republicans, two at least, viz:

Pennsylvania and Colorado are somewhat doubtful. If this statement is correct, the Democratic party will be in a majority of 13 votes that can be relied upon as certain. This leaves the remaining States with one hundred and six electoral votes doubtful. A glance at these States will show in the light of their past and recent elections that they are doubtful. Let us call them over: California, Connecticut, Indiana, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, and Wisconsin. But to elect the Democratic candidate in 1880 he must obtain from these doubtful States 48 votes in the Electoral College, it requiring 185 votes to elect. The question is, can he get them? Of the 8 Northern States put down as doubtful, 6 of them viz: California, Connecticut, Indiana, New Jersey, New York and Oregon vote usually the Democratic ticket. But these States, leaving out New York, will not be sufficient, as they cast only 34 votes. If we add to this number Ohio, then we have an excess of 14 votes, but this estimate requires that all these States with Ohio, and excepting New York and Wisconsin, shall vote for the Democratic candidate. On the other hand according to the Republicans New York, Connecticut and New Jersey added to New York, New England and New Jersey, we still have Ohio, Indiana, California, Wisconsin and Oregon with 5 votes more than necessary to elect the Democrat.

So it will appear, that with a thorough union of the Democratic strength in 1880 is certain. If we lose New York, Connecticut and New Jersey by a soft money policy we give up these Eastern States and let the Western States still elect our candidate. How then can any one doubt that if a temperate and moderate policy is adopted success will be assured? The Democrats have the advantage, and are sure to win, if they are guided by wisdom.

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S

Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC OR

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional dashes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritable, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the skin (pimples); occasional headache; an unmeaning secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, a others entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasionally nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times constipated; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccup; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temperature variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of DR. C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

- - - - -

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AUGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used prepared to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unexcelled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated. Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

I insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

VEGETINE

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICAL PROPERTIES ARE Alterative, Tonic, Solvent AND DIURETIC.

Vegetine Reliable Evidence.

Vegetine Mr. H. R. STEVENS.

Vegetine Dear Sir—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number who have already received good medicine, VEGETINE, for I do not think enough can be said in its favor. I have had it for nearly three years with that dreadful disease, Cancer, and had such bad results from all other remedies as though I never could breathe any more, and VEGETINE has cured me of it. I feel well again.

Vegetine Dr. H. R. STEVENS.

Vegetine Dr. H.

DAILY NEWS

WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, 1879.

Weather Report.

WASHINGTON, May 20.
For the South Atlantic States, lower pressure, variable winds, generally warmer, partly cloudy or clear weather.

Thermometrical Table.
The thermometer, at L. Branson's book-store, ranged as follows yesterday:

6 A. M. 74
12 P. M. 74
6 P. M. 74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74

74